

ARTNEWS

Preview Independent New York 2017

by Maximiliano Durón
February 28, 2017

The eighth edition of Independent New York opens to the public on Friday, March 3, with a preview day on Thursday, March 2. The art fair, which returns to Spring Studios in Tribeca for a second year, will gather 52 exhibitors from 20 cities, with 15 holding booths for the first time. The invitational fair, co-founded by Elizabeth Dee and Darren Flook in 2010, will have five themes across the fair: solo exhibitions by women artists, 1980s-generation artists, key works from the '70s, inter-generational groupings, and site-specific installations. Among the highlights are Barbara Bloom at David Lewis, Howardena Pindell at Garth Greenan Gallery, and Derrick Adams at Tilton Gallery.

